Sixth-graders lead 'Read Across America Day' celebrations

By the Class of 2023

Read Across America Day, conducted March 2, showcased the talents of the Harpursville Class of 2023 (sixth-graders). Every student played a part in a celebration of reading inspired by the writings of Dr. Seuss. The students were able to model character traits such as respect, responsibility, patience, creativity, team work and, above all else, leadership.

All of the sixth-grade students took part in planning for Read Across America Day and week. The groups worked together to accomplish their goals and create props needed for Read Across America Day. There were a few different committees working in different class periods at a time.

The groups got a lot done in the class time provided for them. The kids were so committed to finishing their projects that some came in during recess to get it done. A lot of the groups had checklists to figure out what they had done and what was still in progress or yet to be done. The kids had many creative ideas. All of the teachers were amazed by the creativity the groups brought to the day and week.

The planning process was slow-going, but it produced some good ideas and scripts and, in the end, turned out great. The day began with the assembly committee, which prepared a PowerPoint presentation that was a great success. They also began a play featuring the Cat in the Hat and Thing One and Thing Two. In the play, the Things brought out the cake representing Dr. Seuss' birthday. They then started reading "There's a Wocket in My Pocket" by Dr. Seuss. The teachers and kids enjoyed listening to the Cat in the Hat reading a book because, while they were reading, everyone was nice and quiet and listening. Then the committees sent everyone on their way. For

A message from the Superintendent

Dear Residents,

I hope this letter finds you well and looking forward to springtime. This is always an exciting, albeit busy, time of the school year and this year is no different. As such, I'd like to take a few moments to provide some congratulatory and celebratory information, outline some necessary school calendar changes as a result of the most recent winter storm, and remind you of the remaining schedule for our budget development process.

First and foremost, we continue to have many wonderful things happen in our schools as a direct result of the hard work and cooperation of our students, parents and staff. Of particular note is the recent success of our Odyssey of the Mind teams who competed against their regional peers on March 18 at Broome-Tioga BOCES. Our district sent four teams to the tournament and they brought home two trophies. We are so proud of the students for their effort and achievement with Odyssey. Furthermore, for the second consecutive year, our district will have a team representing the W.A. Olmsted Elementary at the state tournament. This can happen only because of the dedication, teamwork and ingenuity of the students who participate in Odyssey, the parents who provide so much support in preparation for the tournament and on competition day, and the staff members who coach our teams. This is an outstanding example of the bright and hard-working students who fill our classrooms every day. We wish all the best to our team at the "states" and to all of our students as the school year moves toward its conclusion.

Switching gears entirely, I'd like to take a brief moment to remind everyone that the district has had to amend the school calendar due to the unprecedented number of emergency closing days that we had to use this winter. Several weeks ago, the school community was informed that Friday, May 26, would be a day of instruction for students. Now, we must also include Friday, April 21, as a day of instruction, too. The addition of these two days as days of instruction ensure that the district is meeting its requirement for the minimum days of attendance by students and, more importantly, provides for valuable time needed for our students to receive the instruction and learning opportunities necessary for success in their courses. A letter indicating these calendar changes has been sent home to parents/guardians and has been posted on the district's website for your review as well.

Finally, we continue progress in

Michael Rullo
Superintendent

"We continue to have many wonderful things happen in our schools as a direct result of the hard work and cooperation of our students, parents and staff."

the development of the district's budget for the 2017-2018 school year. As discussed in our budget workshops and board of education meetings the last couple of months, this budget has presented some challenges. Despite those challenges, we remain committed to ensuring that the district will continue to provide outstanding educational and extracurricular opportunities to our students while meeting the fiscal responsibilities that district residents deserve and expect. I have every confidence that the budget approved by the Board of Education on April 10 will be one that enables our district to move forward in a positive direction while meeting the needs of our children. I encourage you to attend any of the remaining meetings involving the budget to gather information or provide input. The budget calendar is posted on the district's website under the "District - Budget and Tax Information" tab. Last, the annual budget hearing will be on Monday, May 8, followed by the annual vote on May 16. I encourage you to come out to vote.

In closing, I wish you the best for a wonderful spring season and a strong finish to the school year. As always, if you have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to contact me through the district office.

Yours in education,

Michael J. Rullo

Words are turned into illustrations with book club project

In Book Club this session, the first-graders made recommendations for their favorite books. They drew their favorite illustration from the book and then wrote reasons why they would recommend their book. This aligned with what they were doing in the classroom with writing reviews.

Students demonstrate teamwork and sportsmanship By Victoria Snow, ASEP instructor

Third-graders in the after school enrichment program have been participating in games that enhance teamwork and good sportsmanship.

These activities help students understand the importance of working as a team to complete a task while providing opportunities to strategize together and share ideas.

Two of the games (pictured) are “the blob” and “catch the dragon’s tail.” In the blob, students join arms to tag other players. In catch the dragon’s tail, students coordinate their movements so that the first student in line (the head) can tag the last student in line (the tail).

Communication among the students is important in each of these activities. As the photos show, students find real enjoyment participating in these games.

Odyssey teams perform well in competition at local tournaments

Our "CatchUs If You Can" Odyssey of the Mind team earned a 2nd-place finish at the Region 12 Tournament conducted March 18 at Broome-Tioga BOCES, earning them a spot representing Harpursville at the state tournament April 8 at SUNY Binghamton.

Again this year, teachers Francine Munson and Ann McDonald, along with teacher aide Janet Avery, coached four incredible teams, which worked hard creatively problem solving, writing and practicing scripts, designing and painting backdrops and props, and building cars in preparation for the regional competition.

As in the past, the students made memories and friendships that will last a lifetime.

Odyssey of the Mind is an international program that engages students in creative, thought-provoking learning. The program allows their ideas to come to life in an exciting, productive environment. Participants have fun while building self-confidence, team building and critical thinking skills.

the rest of the day, the classrooms incorporated reading and Dr. Seuss.

A special thanks goes out to all members of the following committees who helped with Read Across America Day: Daily Contest Committee, Parade Committee, Plan for the Whole Day Committee, Work With the Classrooms Committee, Poster Contest Committee, Main Contest Committee, Writing Contest Committee, and the Media/Parent Communication Committee.

Much creativity was shown leading up to the celebration, from the building of the decorations and props to the other grade-level participants, and dressing as book-themed characters. Some of the creative decorations the sixth-graders made were the "truffula trees" used to greet the classes as they entered the gym, the posters and the cake that Thing One and Thing Two brought out. The decorations were a huge success. Later in the day, funny book worms were filled out by all the elementary students and hung in the hallways. In addition, one committee created sculptures of The Cat in the Hat and the Lorax. These sculptures are still on display in the window in the main office and they look very realistic.

Another way that all Olmsteders were able to show their creativity was through three contests. The contests provided creative ideas to get people in the Dr. Seuss spirit. These contests consisted of a daily book trivia contest, a poster contest and a writing contest.

The daily book trivia contest committee made tissue-wrapped trivia boxes. Together with a printed paper that said name, date and teacher, students in all classes were able to answer the trivia questions. The committee came in at recess and study hall to make prizes and pick the winners, who were announced each morning before a new question was asked. The prizes for this contest were a bookmark, a paper crane and a pencil. There were a lot of good and bad answers. The first one picked from each grade bucket that was correct became the winner. Committee members were especially impressed by a second-grader who had a first and last name of Fern from "Charlotte's Web."

WA Olmsted Elementary also held a poster contest for students in pre-K through sixth grade. Students were asked to create a Dr. Seuss-themed poster with their picture and other requirements on it. Some students drew their favorite Dr. Seuss characters, others drew a favorite book cover. The grades were grouped pre-K to kindergarten, 1-2, 3-4, 5-6. The posters were then reviewed by a panel of judges, which included Dylan Willumson, Anthony Hanakovic and Jaylyn Merrill. The winners received Dr. Seuss-themed prizes and a new book. The following students won the poster contest: Jayde Pipher, Hunter Prentice, Isabella DeWolfe and Allena Rowe. From start to finish, the poster contest was well put together and highly enjoyed by elementary school students who were able to let their artistic creativity shine through.

The final challenge was a writing contest. Students in pre-K through grade six wrote their very best stories and submitted them for the chance to win one of four Amazon Kindle Fire HDs. The judges of this contest - Terese Moriarity, Stacey Morgan, and Principal Pamela Horton - had their work cut out for them. There were so many talented entries, but they were able to choose the following winners: Emma Snow, Todd Ingraham, Madalyn Willumson and Sophie Konidis.

The sixth-grade students continued their celebrations with a variety of Dr. Seuss and reading activities. They would like to give a special thanks to Mrs. Barriger for teaching them to decorate cupcakes. They made truffula tree cupcakes by using frosting, coconut flakes, cotton candy, and pretzel sticks. Everyone was so excited to make cupcakes and do all the other fun things that were planned. The cupcakes were very delicious and fun to make.

Read Across America Day took a lot of planning. It took the groups a lot of time and effort, and each group had a good amount of responsibility. Everything got done due to the hard work of the people in each committee. All the groups did their part. It was a lot of rushing and running. Most people in the committees came inside for recess and study hall to make sure everything had been completed and finished. That's just plain old responsibility. Here is a quote from one of our school representatives: "Lots of responsibility. It was a great challenge for you. And you did it!" ~Bobbi Jo Hatton, assistant elementary principal.

The Class of 2023 would like to thank everyone at W.A. Olmsted Elementary School - the staff, principals, teachers, students and parents - for all their help in making Read Across America Day a success. All of the students were happy and excited. The Class of 2023 will not be here to celebrate next year as they will move on to the Jr./Sr. High School, but they wish the Class of 2024 success with next years' celebrations.

Physical education events make the news

Elementary PE Night

On March 7, students in prekindergarten through sixth grade and their families attended the annual PE Night at W. A. Olmsted Elementary School.

There were a variety of stations set up in the elementary gyms to keep everyone active and show parents some of the activities we do in PE class. Students took turns at the traverse climbing wall and did their best at some fun relays that included cup stacking and BOSU ball jumping. A fun time was had by all. We would like to thank all the families who participated in the successful event.

Bryan Kelly Memorial Jump Rope for Heart

Congratulations to the 87 students in second through sixth grade who volunteered for the American Heart Association's annual Bryan Kelly Memorial Jump Rope for Heart.

The students and staff collected more than $5,100, which will be used for the prevention, education and treatment of cardiovascular disease and stroke. The American Heart Association has impacted many lives thanks to all the efforts of these "Heart Heroes." Funds have gone to scientists who have won Nobel prizes for their work. Some 30 million children are eating healthier school meals because of the heart association's work with the USDA, and 27 states now require CPR education in schools. The American Heart Association has worked with health care providers to reduce the number of people dying from heart disease and stroke by 25 percent.

PE teachers Julie Dietrich and Shawn Riley would like to thank all the volunteers for their time and effort and all those in the community and staff at the school who donated to this worthy cause.

We also would like to thank the PTO for its $125 donation toward the event. The top money raisers were Venessa Card, Emily Ayers, Eva DiRosa, Aubree Eberly-Robinson, Myrakle Ray, Scarlett Taylor, Liam Quick, Brayden Reese, Adriana Hartman, Nathaniel Wright, Sophia Wright, Gabriella Pawela, Emily LaClair and Amber Tyler. Many students won raffle prizes the day of the event, including basketballs, playground balls, T-shirts and lanyards donated by the heart association. This year was so successful due to the available online option. Families could easily send donation requests to friends and family by just registering online.

We celebrated the jump rope event by challenging Principal Pamela Horton and Assistant Principal Bobbi Jo Hatton to a fun relay at an assembly in the gym. The students cheered them on as they spun with their head on the top of a bat, attempted a hoppity hop ball, cup stacked and shot a basketball. The best part was the whip cream in the face. We thank them both for being great sports.

Student musicians bring talents to annual events and competitions

During the weekend of March 10-11, music teachers Nicole Cole and Becky Stocum took 17 students to the Greene Central School District to perform at the Spring All-County Festival. The Spring All-County Festival is a combination of Chenango area music schools, including Afton, Bainbridge-Guilford, Greene, Harpursville, Norwich, Oxford, Sherburne-Earlville, Sidney and Unadilla.

The junior band, senior band and swing choir participants sat through a three-hour rehearsal on Friday evening and then returned along with the elementary chorus Saturday morning for five additional hours of rehearsal that was followed by a concert for parents and friends.

The junior band participants included Taylor Rutherford (clarinet), Zachary Pike (alto saxophone) and Dennis Ashmeade (tenor saxophone). The songs they performed under the direction of Andrew Allport were "Flight of Eagles," "With Each Sunset," and "New Forest March."

The swing

choir participants (chosen by audition scores) were Sarah Peterson and Zachary Turck. The music they performed under the direction of Kasey Porter were "You Make Me Feel So Young," "What'll I do?" and "It Don't Mean a Thing if it Ain't Got That Swing." (The last song being the most entertaining as the students had learned a swing dance to accompany it.)

The senior band participants were Sara Williams (clarinet), and Logan Culver (trumpet). The music performed under the direction of Robin Linaberry included "Minuteman March," "Triumphant Fanfare," "River of Life," and "At a Dixieland Jazz Funeral."

How does matter react chemically?

By Emily Koval, science teacher

The fifth-graders have been spending quite a bit of time learning about physical and chemical changes.

They've learned that physical changes do not make a new substance but the form of the substance may change. However, with a chemical change, a new substance is created. We've learned through many stations and labs that in order for us to tell if a new substance has actually been formed, meaning a chemical change has occurred, we must look for the four main clues: drastic color change (ex: white to black), bubbles (gas is created), light production and heat production. The students recently completed a lab where they had to identify an unknown substance based on the physical and chemical observations for the four known substances.

In the photo to the right, Connor Leach shows that a chemical reaction has occurred when he added iodine to cornstarch. The drastic color change occurred when the color went from white powder and a brown liquid to a new substance that was a dark purple or black color.
